

Does your health system need help with a quality initiative?

Request a DNP project

The Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) in advanced nursing practice prepares graduates to apply and integrate research into clinical practice using innovative approaches to improve healthcare outcomes of populations and individuals across multiple settings.

Students of the doctoral program are educated as leaders at the highest level of nursing practice to translate research into practice, lead interprofessional teams, and engage in healthcare policy and advocacy to improve patient outcomes. In addition to advanced nursing specialty-focused outcomes, the DNP students collaborate with a partner organization to address clinical problems in an evidence-based project.

If you already have an academic partnership with the Edson College at ASU or are an agency with a project need that our students could help you achieve, we ask you to submit your idea for a potential match.

Deadline to submit: First week of August
